

Exchange

When a stretch of land is intact one day and on the following the excavator digs it up, the soil gives way. Its form changes

The project negotiates:
the organization and exchange of human life and activity with nature, the threatening invasion of building activity into the natural landscape. It highlights the intervention and the enclosure of man as well as of nature itself.